

The Weever Sands
Stylobat’s Travels

Release info

trommelfell-records (LC 02040) has released “Stylobat’s Travels” by German Cologne-based Post-Prog project The Weever Sands. The album is the successor of the project’s debut from 2016, “Keep Your Face Turned To The Light”.

The music is available on all relevant platforms: <https://www.the-weever-sands.com/sources/> More information on the project’s Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/theweeverands>

With the new album, The Weever Sands continue to work on their delicate and partly retro-electronic instrumental fusion of slow-mowing Post-Rock minimalism (including the use of sound samples & bizarre audio drama and spoken word passages) and Progressive Rock opulence (including keyboard & guitar ecstasy and tons of different sounds).

As guests, the project has invited Ex-Guano Apes-producer ("Open Your Eyes") Geo Schaller on flute, contributing a grooving Jethro Tull-inspired solo on track no. 2, and Technical Death Metal/Speed Metal guitarist Armin Rave who is elegantly juggling with the motifs of a small folk-rock melody at the heart of the 25 min title track (no. 3).

Again, the overall sound design is inspired by a very early word by Mike Oldfield who described his idea of a band with the term "powerful miniature". The Weever Sands take this as a blueprint to come up with transparent and almost fragile tracks who stay a "miniature" even when they develop into symphonic width and heights.

Against that background, the album tells the slightly bizarre story of a stylish bat in ancient Greece, searching for his sweetheart. Fittingly, the 4-piece track list is filled with references concerning Greek architecture and mythology.

Track list

1. Intro/The Breakout Session 3:29
2. And Aphrodite Took The Veil 7:03
3. Stylobat’s Travels 25:27
I Flatlined (Wake Up, My Love) II Stereobat III Ah! These Ionic Beams! IV Introducing Fire Ghosts V Underwater
4. Acropolis (The Big Wave) 6:12

The concept behind the music, the minimalist ambient videos, the artwork, and all people who contributed to this collaborative project can be found on The Weever Sands’ website. Teasers for the album used on Facebook can be found here <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3cdxBK4qSww> and here <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Aup9lPQWQvU>

